

A brilliant Boat dive.. Skeleton Rock is a popular dive in the Seal Rocks area. trust me its worth it a trip out, You can see just about anything on this dive... there is a small population of Grey Nurse Sharks living around the rock.

Another spectacular attraction to this dive site are the GIANT Southern Eagle Rays (Bull Rays). Its not uncommon to see these beautiful creatures in lengths of around 4 metres or so. Its an unbelievable experience.

Other things you will be just about guaranteed to see include, Moray eels, Scarlet Mowong (otherwise known as Dancing Fish) Loggerhead Turtles sleep in every undercut and crevice.

You can find tons of rock dwelling fish and small crustaceans living amongst the kelp, as well as Blue Groper and Wobbygong Sharks by the hundreds.

It really is a brilliant dive!

ENTRY: You can get in to the water by a giant stride from the stern then swim to the bow

DESCENT: Descend the anchor line holding the line all the way down. If shore diving, descend together watching each other on your way down.

DEPTH: Your depth ranges from around 10—30 metres.

BOTTOM TIMES: Can be up to 45 minutes. We recommend that you do 35 minutes.

SAFETY STOPS: There is a safety stop required for this dive, a slow ascent from every dive is important.

DANGER: Visibility: can sometimes be down to 2 metres or so but it can also be up to 25 metres+

Surge: can also be a problem on this dive site; you may find that the northern side could be the calmest.

Current: can sometimes be a problem for shore divers, though it's mainly surface current you will need to be aware of.

IF YOU: Come off the reef just do a normal ascent, surface, establish positive buoyancy, signal the boat and deploy your safety sausage. Wave your arm if you need help or your safety sausage and we will come and get you as soon as we can.
